- (vii) providing on the terms of any other agreements and services relating to the Customer;
- (viii) any purpose relating to or in connection with compliance with any law, regulation, court order or order of any regulatory body;

4. Rights of the Customer

The Customer has the right to have access to and correction of the Customer's personal data as set out in the Ordinance. In general, and subject to certain exemptions, the Customer is entitled to:

- (i) enquire whether an Associate holds personal data in relation to the Customer;
- (ii) request access to the Customer's personal data within a reasonable time, at a fee which is not excessive, in a reasonable manner and in a form that is intelligible;
- (iii) request the correction of the Customer's personal data;
- (iv) be given reasons if a request for access or correction is refused, and object to any such refusal;

- (v) object to the use of its data as listed under clause 3.2 above, however the objection to any one of the uses contained therein shall prevent the Company from administering the account. 5. Disclosure of Personal Data

6. Contact Person

If the Customer wishes to request access to and /or correct personal data and/or opt out of receiving direct marketing material, the Customer should contact the Company on 3890 2923 or cs@dl-securities.com.

SCHEDULE 3. RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENTS

1 Risk of Securities Trading

Investment involves risk and the past performance of any security is not a guarantee of its future performance. The prices of securities fluctuate, sometimes dramatically. The price of a security may move up or down, and may become valueless. It is as likely that losses will be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling securities.

2 Risk of Trading Futures and Options

The risk of loss in trading futures contracts or options is substantial. In some circumstances, the Customer may sustain losses in excess of the Customer's initial margin funds.

Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily avoid loss. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders.

The Customer may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, the Customer's position may be liquidated. The Customer will remain liable for any resulting deficit in the Customer's account.

The Customer should therefore study and understand futures contracts and options before the Customer trades and carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in the light of the Customer's own financial position and investment objectives.

If the Customer trades options, the Customer should inform themselves of the exercise and expiration procedures and the Customer's rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

3 Risk of Trading Growth Enterprise Market Stocks

Growth Enterprise Market ("GEM") stocks involve a high investment risk. In particular, companies may list on GEM with neither a track record of profitability nor any obligation to forecast future profitability. GEM stocks may be very volatile and illiquid.

The Customer should make the decision to invest only after due and careful consideration. The greater risk profile and other characteristics of GEM mean that it is a market more suited to professional and other sophisticated investors.

Current information on GEM stocks may only be found on the internet website operated by the SEHK. GEM Companies are usually not required to issue paid announcements in gazetted newspapers.

The Customer should seek independent professional advice if the Customer is uncertain of or does not understand any aspect of this risk disclosure statement or the nature and risks involved in the trading of GEM stocks.

4 Risk of Customer Assets Received or Held outside Hong Kong

The Customer assets received or held by the Company outside Hong Kong are subject to the applicable laws and regulations of the relevant overseas jurisdiction which may be different from the Securities and Futures Ordinance (Cap. 571) and the rules made thereunder.

Consequently, such Customer assets may not enjoy the same protection as that conferred on Customer assets received or held in Hong Kong.

5 Risk of Trading Nasdaq-Amex Securities at the SEHK

The securities under the Nasdaq-Amex Pilot Program (PP) are aimed at sophisticated investors. The Customer should consult the Company and become familiarized with the PP before trading in the PP securities. The Customer should be aware that the PP securities are not regulated as a primary or secondary listing on the Main Board or the GEM of the SEHK.

6 Risk of using the Electronic Services under the On-line Trading Agreement

If the Customer undertakes Transactions via Electronic Services, the Customer will be exposed to risks associated with the Electronic Services system including the failure of hardware and software, and the result of any system failure may be that the Customer's order is either not executed according to the Customer's Instructions or is not executed at all.

Due to unpredictable traffic congestion and other reasons, Electronic Services may not be reliable and Transactions conducted via Electronic Services may be subject to delays in transmission and receipt of the Customer's Instructions or other Information, delays in execution or execution of the Customer's Instructions at prices different from those prevailing at the time your Instructions were given, transmission interruption or blackout.

There are risks of misunderstanding or errors in communication, and it is also usually not possible to cancel an Instruction after it has been given. The Company accepts no responsibility for any loss which may be incurred by the Customer as a result of such interruptions or delays or access by third parties. The Customer should not place any Instruction with us via Electronic Services if the Customer is not prepared to accept the risk of such interruptions or delays.

Market data and other information made available to the Customer through our Electronic Service may be obtained by the Company from third parties. While the Company believes such market data or information to be reliable, neither the Company nor such third parties guarantees the accuracy, completeness, or timeliness of any such market data or information.

7 Risk of Margin Trading

The risk of loss in financing a transaction by deposit of collateral is significant. The Customer may sustain losses in excess of the cash and any other assets deposited as collateral with the Company.

Market conditions may make it impossible to execute contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders.

The Customer may be called upon at short notice to make additional margin deposits or interest payments. If the required margin deposits or interest payments are not made within the prescribed time, the Customer's collateral may be liquidated without the Customer's consent.

The Customer should closely monitor the Customer's positions, as in some market conditions the Company may be unable to contact the Customer or provide the Customer with sufficient time to make the required deposits, and forced liquidation may be necessary. Moreover, the Customer will remain liable for any resulting deficit in the Customer's account and interest charged on the account.

The Customer should therefore carefully consider whether such a financing arrangement is suitable in light of the Customer's own financial position and investment objectives.

8 Risk of Providing an Authority to Repledge Client's Securities Collateral

There is risk if the Customer provides the Company with authority that allows it to apply the Customer's Securities or securities collateral pursuant to a securities borrowing and lending agreement, repledge the Customer's securities collateral for financial accommodation or deposit the Customer's securities collateral as collateral for the discharge and satisfaction of its settlement obligations and liabilities.

If the Customer's Securities or securities collateral are received or held by the Company, the above arrangement is allowed only if the Customer consents in writing. Moreover, the authority must specify the period for which it is current and be limited to not more than 12 months.

The Customer has the discretion not to give the Customer Securities Standing Authority set out under Clause 5 of Schedule 5 by giving a written notice to the Company in the circumstances provided for under either Clause 5.1 or Clause 5.7 of Schedule 5.

Additionally, the Customer Securities Standing Authority set out under Clause 5 of Schedule 5 (if it is not revoked prior to its expiry) may be renewed for one or more further periods but not exceeding 12 months. Such Customer Securities Standing Authority shall be deemed to be renewed (i.e. without the Customer's further consent) if the Company issues the Customer a reminder at least 14 days prior to the expiry of the authority and the Customer does not object to such deemed renewal before the expiry date of the then existing authority.

The Customer is not required by any law to sign and give the Customer Securities Standing Authority set out under Clause 5 of Schedule 5, but an authority may be required by the Company, for example, to facilitate margin lending to the Customer or to allow the Customer's Securities or securities collateral to be loaned to or deposited as Collateral with third parties. The Company should explain to the Customer the purpose for which client securities standing authority is to be used.

If the Customer sign and give the Customer Securities Standing Authority set out under Clause 5 of Schedule 5 and the Customer's Securities or securities collateral are lent to or deposited with third parties, those third parties will have lien or charge on the Customer's Securities or securities collateral. Although the Company is responsible to the Customer for the Customer's Securities or securities collateral lent or deposited under the authority, a default by it could result in the loss of Customer's Securities or securities collateral.

A cash account not involving securities borrowing and lending is available from the Company. If the Customer does not require margin facilities or does not wish the Customer's Securities or securities collateral to be lent or pledged, the Customer should not sign the above authorities and should only ask to open the aforesaid type of cash account.

9 Risk of Trading of Foreign Securities, including Shares Listed in Mainland China

The Customer should only undertake trading of foreign securities if the Customer understands the nature of foreign securities trading and the extent of the Customer's exposure to risks.

In particular, foreign securities trading is not regulated by the SEHK and will not be covered by the Investor Compensation Fund despite the fact that the Company is an exchange participant of the SEHK.

The Customer should carefully consider whether such trading is appropriate in light of the Customer's trading experience, risk profile and other relevant circumstances and seek independent professional advice if the Customer is in doubt.

10 Risk of Over-the-Counter Trading

The Customer should understand the nature of over-the-counter ("OTC") trading and the extent of the Customer exposure to the risks.

Through OTC trading, the Customer is exposed to the credit, settlement, and other risks of the counterparty to the relevant OTC transactions, including (but not limited to) transactions of Securities before their listing on the Exchange. Settlement of the relevant transactions is not guaranteed and the Customer will be responsible for any losses or expenses resulting from the Customer and/or the counterparty's settlement failures.

11 Risks of Trading in Foreign Currency

The profit or loss in transactions of foreign currency denominated products (whether they are traded in the Customer's own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the products to another currency.

The Customer understands that the trading financial products/securities with underlying assets not denominated in Hong Kong dollars are exposed to exchange rate risk. Currency rate fluctuations can adversely affect the underlying asset value, also affecting the financial product/securities' price.

12 Risk of Trading Exchange Traded Notes (ETNs)

ETN is a type of unsecured, unsubordinated debt security issued by an underwriting bank, designed to provide investors access to the returns of various market benchmarks. The returns of ETNs are usually linked to the performance of a market benchmark or strategy, minus applicable fees. Similar to other debt securities, ETNs have a maturity date and are backed only by the credit of the issuer.

The Customer can buy and sell the ETNs on the exchange or receive a cash payment at the scheduled maturity or may early redeem the ETNs directly with the issuer based on the performance of the underlying index less applicable fees, with redemption restrictions, such as the minimum number of ETNs for early redemption, may apply.

There is no guarantee that the Customer will at maturity or upon an earlier repurchase, receive the initial investment back or any return on that investment. Significant adverse monthly performances for the Customer's ETNs may not be offset by any beneficial monthly performances.

The issuer of ETNs may have the right to redeem the ETNs at the repurchase value at any time.

If at any time the repurchase value of the ETNs is zero, the Customer's investment will become worthless. ETNs may not be liquid and there is no guarantee that the Customer will be able to liquidate the Customer's position whenever the Customer wishes.

Although both Exchange Traded Funds and ETNs are linked to the return of a benchmark index, ETNs as debt securities do not actually own any assets they are tracking. Instead, the ETN represents a promise from the issuer to pay investors the theoretical allocation of the return reflected in the benchmark index. It provides limited portfolio diversification with concentrated exposure to a specific index and the index components. In the event that the ETN issuer defaults, the potential maximum loss could be 100% of the investment amount and no return may be received.

The value of the ETN may drop despite no change in the underlying index, instead the drop may be due to a downgrade in the issuer's credit rating. Therefore, by buying ETNs, the Customer gets direct exposure to the credit risk of the issuer and would only have an unsecured bankruptcy claim if the issuer declares bankruptcy.

The principal amount is subject to the periodic application of investor fee or any applicable fees that can adversely affect returns.

The Customer may have leveraged exposure to the underlying index, depending on the product feature. The value of ETNs can change rapidly according to the gearing ratio relative to the underlying assets. The Customer should be aware that the value of an ETN may fall to zero resulting in a total loss of the initial investment.

13 Default Risks & Counterparty Risks

Every investment product contains default risks and/or counterparty risks. Default risk could come from the issuer's failure to make payments as agreed. At time of market downturn, an issuer may default due to their inability to raise new debt to roll over or repay old ones. Credit ratings are the most common tools used for assessing bond default risk. A rating represents the opinion of the rating agency at a particular point of time and may change over time, due to either changes in the financial status of the issuers or changes in market conditions.

Counterparty risk refers to the failure of the trading party in fulfilling their financial contractual obligations. While ratings by credit agencies represented quality assurances, the Customer should not only refer to the credit ratings of the product issuers, but also seek full understanding of the product structure and its exposure to the financial derivatives in order to avoid financial loss.

14 Risk Relating to Collective Investment Schemes

Collective Investment Schemes may invest extensively (up to 100%) in financial derivative instruments, fixed income securities and/or structured products (including, but not limited to credit default swaps, sub-investment grade debt, mortgage-backed securities and other asset-backed securities) and be subject to various risks (including but not limited to counterparty risk, liquidity risk, credit risk, and market risk).

Collective Investment Schemes may use trading strategies that use financial derivative instruments which may be unsuccessful due to a number of reasons; including but not limited to volatile market conditions, imperfect correlation between the movements in securities on which derivatives are based, lack of liquidity within markets and counterparty default risk.

15 General Risk of Trading in Derivatives and Structured Products

Issuer Default Risk: In the event that a structured product issuer becomes insolvent and defaults on their listed securities, the Customer will be considered an unsecured creditor and will have no preferential claim to any assets held by the issuer. The Customer should therefore pay close attention to the financial strength and credit worthiness of structured product issuers.

Uncollateralised Product Risk: Uncollateralised structured products are not asset backed. In the event of issuer bankruptcy, the Customer can lose the entire investment. The Customer should read the listing documents to determine if a product is uncollateralized and whether the product is suited to them.

Gearing Risk: Structured products such as derivative warrants and callable bull/bear contracts (CBBCs) are leveraged and can change in value rapidly according to the gearing ratio relative to the underlying assets. The Customer should be aware that the value of a structured product may fall to zero resulting in a total loss of the initial investment.

Expiry Considerations: Structured products have an expiry date after which the issue may become worthless. The Customer should be aware of the expiry time horizon and choose a product with an appropriate lifespan for their trading strategy.

Extraordinary Price Movements: The price of a structured product may not match its theoretical price due to outside influences such as market supply and demand factors. As a result, actual traded prices can be higher or lower than the theoretical price.

Liquidity Risk: The Exchange requires all structured product issuers to appoint a liquidity provider for each individual issue. The role of liquidity providers is to provide two way quotes to facilitate trading of their products. In the event that a liquidity provider defaults or ceases to fulfill its role, the Customer may not be able to buy or sell the product until a new liquidity provider has been assigned.

16 Specific Risk of Trading Derivative Warrants

Time Decay Risk: All things being equal, the value of a derivative warrant will decay over time as it approaches its expiry date. Derivative warrants should therefore not be viewed as long term investments.

Volatility Risk: Prices of derivative warrants can increase or decrease in line with the implied volatility of underlying asset price. The Customer should be aware of the underlying asset volatility.

Limited Life: Unlike stocks, derivative warrants have an expiry date and therefore a limited life. Unless the derivative warrants are in-the-money, they become worthless at expiration. Deeply out- of-the-money warrants are less sensitive to movements in the price of the underlying asset because such warrants are unlikely to become in-the-money on expiry.

Turnover: High turnover should not be regarded as an indication that a derivative warrant's price will go up. The price of a derivative warrant is affected by a number of factors in addition to market forces, such as the price of the underlying assets and its volatility, the time remaining to expiry, interest rates and the expected dividend on the underlying assets.

17 Specific Risk of Trading Callable Bull/Bear Contracts ("CBBC")

Mandatory Call Risk: Customers trading CBBCs should be aware of their intraday "knockout" or mandatory call feature. A CBBC will cease trading when the underlying asset value equals the mandatory call price/level as stated in the listing documents. The Customer will only be entitled to the residual value of the terminated CBBC as calculated by the product issuer in accordance with the listing documents. The Customer should also note that the residual value can be zero.

Funding Costs: The issue price of a CBBC includes funding costs. Funding costs are gradually reduced over time as the CBBC moves towards expiry. The longer the duration of the CBBC, the higher the total funding costs. In the event that a CBBC is called, the Customer will lose the funding costs for the entire lifespan of the CBBC. The formula for calculating the funding costs are stated in the listing documents.

Limited Life: A CBBC has a limited lifespan as denoted by the fixed expiry date. The life of a CBBC may be shorter if called before the fixed expiry date. The price of a CBBC fluctuates with the changes in the price of the underlying asset from time to time and may become worthless after expiry and in certain cases, even before the normal expiry if the CBBC has been called early.

Movement with Underlying Asset: The price changes of a CBBC tends to follow closely the price changes of its underlying asset, but in some situations it may not. Prices of CBBC are affected by a number of factors, including its own demand and supply, funding costs and time to expiry. The delta for a particular CBBC may not always be close to one, especially when the price of the underlying asset is close to the Call Price.

Trading of CBBC close to Call Price: When the underlying asset is trading close to the Call Price, the price of a CBBC may be more volatile with wider spreads and uncertain liquidity. CBBC may be called at any time and trading will terminate as a result. However, the trade inputted by the Customer may still be executed and confirmed after the Mandatory Call Event (MCE) since there may be some time lapse between MCE and suspension of the CBBC trading. Any trades executed after the MCE will not be recognized and will be cancelled. Therefore, the Customer should be aware of the risk and ought to apply special caution when the CBBC is trading close to the Call Price.

Overseas Underlying Assets: CBBC issued on overseas underlying assets may be called outside the Exchange's trading hours.

18 Specific Risk of Trading Exchange Traded Funds (“ETFs”)

Market Risk: ETFs are typically designed to track the performance of certain indices, market sectors, or groups of assets such as stocks, bonds, or commodities. ETF managers may use different strategies to achieve this goal, but in general they do not have the discretion to take defensive positions in declining markets. The Customer must be prepared to bear the risk of loss and volatility associated with the underlying index/assets.

Tracking Errors: Tracking errors refer to the disparity in performance between an ETF and its underlying index/assets. Tracking errors can arise due to factors such as the impact of transaction fees and expenses incurred to the ETF, changes in composition of the underlying index/assets, and the ETF manager's replication strategy. (The common replication strategies include full replication/representative sampling and synthetic replication.)

Trading at Discount or Premium: An ETF may be traded at a discount or premium to its Net Asset Value (NAV). This price discrepancy is caused by supply and demand factors, and may be particularly likely to emerge during periods of high market volatility and uncertainty. This phenomenon may also be observed for ETFs tracking specific markets or sectors that are subject to direct investment restrictions.

Liquidity risk: Securities Market Makers (SMMs) are Exchange Participants that provide liquidity to facilitate trading in ETFs. Although most ETFs are supported by one or more SMMs, there is no assurance that active trading will be maintained. In the event that the SMMs default or cease to fulfill their role, the Customer may not be able to buy or sell the product.

Derivative Embedded ETFs Risk: ETF may invest in derivative products. Derivative Embedded ETF may invest in CAAPs, index futures contracts and other financial derivative instruments (“FDI”). Investing in a FDI is not the same as investing directly in an underlying asset which is part of the Underlying Index.

A FDI is a form of contract. Under the terms of a derivative contract, Derivative Embedded ETF and its counterparty (i.e. the person(s) with whom Derivative Embedded ETF has made the agreement) agree to make certain payments to the other party under particular circumstances or on the occurrence of particular events specified in the contract. The value of the FDI depends on, or is derived from, or determined by reference to, the value of an underlying asset such as a Security or an index.

Certain FDI may give rise to a form of leverage and may expose Derivative Embedded ETF to greater risk and increase its costs. FDI may be more sensitive to factors which affect the value of investments. Accordingly FDIs have a high degree of price variability and are subject to occasional rapid and substantial price changes. As a result, a relatively small price movement in a FDI may result in immediate and substantial loss (or gain) to Derivative Embedded ETF. Derivative Embedded ETF's losses may be greater and potentially equal to the full value of the FDIs than if it invests only in conventional Securities.

In addition, many FDI are not traded on exchanges. This means that it may be difficult for Derivative Embedded ETF to sell its investments in FDI in order to raise cash and/or to realise a gain or loss or value such FDIs accurately. The sale and purchase of FDI, which are not traded on an exchange, are privately negotiated and are generally not subject to central clearing agency guarantees, daily marking-to-market, settlement, and segregation, minimum capital requirements applicable to intermediaries, or regulation by government authorities and it may be difficult to find a willing buyer/seller because there is no regulatory requirement for a market maker to ensure that there is continuous market for such FDI.

Derivatives Counterparty Risk: As explained, FDI is a form of contract. Payments to be made under many FDI are not made through or guaranteed by a central clearing agency. Accordingly Derivative Embedded ETF which invests in FDIs is exposed to the risk of its counterparty being unwilling or unable to perform its payment (and other) obligations under the contract. If the counterparty to the FDI is involved in any insolvency event, the value of that FDI may drop substantially or be worth nothing and Derivative Embedded ETF may experience significant delays in obtaining any recovery. This is because investing in a FDI is not the same as investing directly in an underlying asset which is part of the Underlying Index.

Futures Trading Risk: Futures are highly leveraged which means that a relatively small movement in the price of a futures contract may result in a profit or loss which is high in proportion to the amount of funds actually placed as margin and may result in unquantifiable further loss exceeding any margin deposited. Trading in many futures contracts is subject to daily price fluctuation restrictions which prohibit the execution of futures trades on any given day outside a prescribed price range based on the previous day's closing prices. This may create liquidity risk, as it may be costly or impossible for the Manager to liquidate a futures position against which the market is moving.

“CAAP” means a US dollar denominated China A Share Access Product being a FDI (such as a warrant, note or participation certificate) linked to (a) an A Share that is linked or not linked to the Underlying Index; or (b) the Underlying Index

19 Leveraged & Inverse (“L&I”) Products Key risks

Investment Risk: Trading L&I products involves investment risk and are not intended for all investors. There is no guarantee of repaying the principal amount.

Volatility risk: Prices of L&I products may be more volatile than conventional exchange traded funds (ETFs) because of the use of leverage and rebalancing activities.

Unlike Conventional ETFs: L&I products are different from conventional ETFs. They do not share the same characteristics and risks as conventional ETFs.

Long-term Holding Risk: L&I products are not intended for holding longer than the rebalancing interval, typically one day. Daily rebalancing and the compounding effect will make the L&I product's performance over a period longer than one day deviate in amount and possibly direction from the leveraged/inverse performance of the underlying index over the same period. The deviation becomes more pronounced in a volatile market. As a result of daily rebalancing, the underlying index's volatility and the effects of compounding of each day's return over time, it is possible that the leveraged product will lose money over time while the underlying index increases or is flat. Likewise, it is possible that the inverse product will lose money over time while the underlying index decreases or is flat.

Risk of Rebalancing Activities: There is no assurance that L&I products can rebalance their portfolios on a daily basis to achieve their investment objectives. Market disruption, regulatory restrictions or extreme market volatility may adversely affect the rebalancing activities.

Intraday Investment Risk: Leverage factor of L&I products may change during a trading day when the market moves but it will not be rebalanced until day end. The L&I product's return during a trading day may be greater or less than the leveraged/opposite return of the underlying index.

Portfolio Turnover Risk: Daily rebalancing causes a higher levels of portfolio transaction when compared to conventional ETFs, and thus increases brokerage and other transaction costs.

Correlation Risk: Fees, expenses, transactions cost as well as costs of using financial derivatives may reduce the correlation between the performance of the L&I product and the leveraged/inverse performance of the underlying index on a daily basis.

Termination Risk: L&I products must be terminated when all the market makers resign. Termination of the L&I product should take place at about the same time when the resignation of the last market maker becomes effective.

Leverage Risk (for leveraged products only): The use of leverage will magnify both gains and losses of leveraged products resulting from changes in the underlying index or, where the underlying index is denominated in a currency other than the leveraged product's base currency, from fluctuations in exchange rates.

Unconventional Return Pattern (for inverse products only): Inverse products aim to deliver the opposite of the daily return of the underlying index. If the value of the underlying index increases for extended periods, or where the exchange rate of the underlying index denominated in a currency other than the inverse product's base currency rises for an extended period, inverse products can lose most or all of their value.

Inverse Products vs Short Selling (for inverse products only): Investing in inverse products is different from taking a short position. Because of rebalancing, the performance of inverse products may deviate from a short position in particular in a volatile market with frequent directional swings.

20 Risks Associated with Rights Issues

A rights issue is a one-time offering of shares in a company to existing shareholders, allowing them an opportunity to maintain their proportional ownership without being diluted by buying additional new shares at a discounted price on a stated future date.

Until the date at which the new shares can be purchased, the Customer may trade the rights to the market the same way ordinary shares are traded. If the Customer does not intend to exercise the rights, the rights issue can be sold on the open market.

Once exercised, the rights cannot be used again. If the Customer does not exercise their rights within the specified period, the rights will expire.

While shares are offered at a discount during rights issues, the Customer should not assume that the discounted price is necessarily a bargain. An informed decision should be made by looking at the rationale behind the fund raising exercise.

A company may use a rights issue to cover debt, especially when they are unable to borrow money from other sources. The Customer should be concerned with whether or not the management are addressing any underlying problems.

If the Customer decides not to take up the rights the Customer's overall shareholding in the company will be diluted as a result of the increased number of shares in issue.

If the Customer does not participate in the rights issue within the specified time-frame, the nil-paid rights will lapse. The company will sell these entitlements and distribute any net proceeds after deduction of the offer price and costs. The amount of lapsed proceeds, if any, will not be known until the offer has closed. Lapsed proceeds are not guaranteed.

Investments and income arising from rights issue can fall in value and the Customer may get back less than originally invested.

21 Risk of Trading Equity-linked Instrument ("ELI")

Where the Customer instructs the Company to use the Account for trading ELI, the Customer acknowledges that ELIs are not principal protected and the Customer may suffer a loss if the price(s) of the reference asset(s) of an ELI go against the Customer's view.

In extreme cases, the Customer could lose the entire investment. The risk of loss may be substantial in certain circumstances and the Customer should not deal in ELIs unless the Customer understands the nature of the transactions entered into and the extent of the Customer's exposure to risk. The Customer should carefully consider whether the transactions are suitable in the light of the Customer's circumstances and financial position.

The Customer understands that while most ELIs generally generate higher interest than ordinary time deposits or traditional bonds, the potential gain on an ELI may be capped at a predetermined level specified by the issuer.

During the investment period, the Customer has no rights in the reference asset(s). Changes in the market prices of such reference asset(s) may not lead to a corresponding change in the market value and/or potential payout of the ELI.

The Customer is fully aware that an investment in ELI exposes the Customer to equity risk. The Customer is exposed to price movements in the underlying security and the stock market, the impact of dividends and corporate actions and counterparty risks. The Customer accepts the legal obligation to take the underlying instrument at the pre-agreed conversion price instead of receiving the principal of the ELI, if the price of the underlying instrument falls below the conversion price. The Customer will therefore receive an instrument that has fallen in value to the extent that it is less than the original investment, and might even lose the entire principal or deposit if the underlying instrument become worthless. ELIs are not secured on any assets or collateral.

The Customer is fully aware that by investing in an ELI, the Customer relies on the credit-worthiness of the issuer. In case of default or insolvency of the issuer, the Customer will have to rely on the distributor to take action on the Customer's behalf to claim as an unsecured creditor of the issuer regardless of the performance of the reference asset(s).

Issuers may provide limited market making arrangement for their ELIs. However, if the Customer tries to terminate an ELI before maturity under the market making arrangement provided by the issuer, the Customer may receive an amount which is substantially less than the Customer's original investment amount. ELI may be "non transferable" and it may be impossible for the Customer to close out or liquidate them. Issuer of an ELI may also play different roles, such as the arranger, the market agent and the calculation agent of the ELI. Conflicts of interest may arise from the different roles played by the issuer, its subsidiaries and affiliates in connection with the ELI.

The Customer should note that any dividend payment on the underlying security may affect its price and the payback of the ELI at expiry due to ex-dividend pricing. The Customer should also note that issuers may make adjustments to the ELI due to corporate actions on the underlying security.

Potential yield: Investors should consult their brokers on fees and charges related to the purchase and sale of ELI and payment / delivery at expiry. The potential yields disseminated by HKEx have not taken fees and charges into consideration.

22 Specific Risks involved in Futures-based ETFs

Risk of Rolling Futures Contracts: Futures contracts are binding agreements that are made through futures exchanges to buy or sell the underlying assets at a specified time in the future. "Rollover" occurs when an existing futures contract is about to expire and is replaced with another futures contract representing the same underlying but with a later expiration date. When rolling futures contracts forward (i.e. selling near-term futures contracts and then buying longer-term futures contracts) in a situation where the prices of the longer-term futures contract are higher than that of the expiring current-month futures contract, a loss from rolling (i.e. a negative roll yield) may occur. Under such circumstances, the proceeds from selling the near-term futures contracts will not be sufficient to purchase the same number of futures contracts with a later expiration date which has a higher price. This may adversely affect the NAV of the futures-based ETF.

Risk of Statutory Restrictions on number of Futures Contracts being held: There is a statutory position limit restricting the holding of futures contracts traded on the recognised exchange company to no more than a specific number of such futures contracts. If the holding of such futures contracts of a futures-based ETF grows to the limit, this may prevent the creation of units of the ETF due to the inability to acquire further futures contracts. This may lead to differences between the trading price and the NAV of the ETF units listed on the exchange.

23 Risk Relating to Securities Denominated in Renminbi (RMB)

RMB is not freely convertible. Conversion between RMB and foreign currencies (including Hong Kong dollar) is subject to PRC regulatory restrictions, which may affect the liquidity of RMB denominated securities.

As RMB denominated securities may have irregular trading or an inactive market, the Customer may not be able to sell the Customer's investment on a timely basis, or the Customer may have to sell the product at a deep discount of its value.

The Hong Kong dollar value of the Customer's investment will go down if the RMB depreciates against the Hong Kong dollar.

24 Specific Risks of trading Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect and/or Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect Securities

When clients participate in Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect and/or Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock

Connect (collectively referred to as "Stock Connect") trading of Shanghai Stock Exchange/Shenzhen Exchange securities through our company, they must fully understand and assume the following risks. Clients should make prudent decisions only after completely understanding the nature of Stock Connect trading and the associated risks and carefully evaluate whether such trading is suitable based on their investment experience, trading objectives, financial status and other relevant factors (consulting professional advisors when necessary).

Special Risks:

Trading Restrictions for Mainland Investors

- Mainland investors are prohibited from actively purchasing China Connect Securities (including participation in rights issues) through Northbound Trading, except for passive acquisition of China Connect Securities due to corporate actions (such as stock dividend distributions). Existing holdings of China Connect Securities may continue to be sold through designated preset values stipulated by HKEX.

Trading Mechanisms

- No day trading is allowed
- Pre-trade checking is in place so that a client must have his/her shares transferred to the EP's corresponding CCASS account before the commencement of trading on a trading day if he/she intends to sell the shares during a trading day, unless an SPSA arrangement is in place
- All transactions must be executed through SSE/SZSE systems, with no over-the-counter or non-automated matching transactions allowed
- Naked short selling is not allowed

Shareholding Limits and Compulsory Measures

- Foreign shareholding restriction (including the forced-sale arrangement) is in place and the EP should have the right to "force-sell" client's shares upon receiving the forced-sale notification from SEHK
- Clients must strictly comply with Mainland regulations regarding short-swing profit rules and disclosure requirements

Emergency Handling Procedures

- Exchange participants reserve the right to cancel client orders in emergency situations
- the EP may not be able to send in the client's order cancellation requests in case of contingency such as when SEHK loses all its communication lines with SSE/SZSE, etc. and the client should still bear the settlement obligations if the orders are matched and executed

Compliance Requirements

- Clients must comply with SSE/SZSE trading rules and applicable Mainland China laws and regulations
- The company will submit client identity information to SEHK as required by regulations, which SEHK may further provide to SSE/SZSE for regulatory investigations

Regulatory Investigation Authority

- If clients are suspected of violating SSE/SZSE rules (including listing rules and disclosure requirements), the exchanges have the right to conduct investigations and request client trading information through SEHK
- SEHK may, upon request from SSE/SZSE, require the EP to reject orders from the client

Service Restrictions and Liability Exemptions

- SSE/SZSE may request SEHK to require the EP to issue warning statements (verbally or in writing) to the client, and not to extend Northbound trading service to the client
- SEHK, its subsidiaries, SSE/SZSE and their respective subsidiaries (including their directors, employees and agents) shall not be responsible or held liable for any loss or damage directly or indirectly suffered by the EP, the client or any third parties arising from or in connection with Northbound trading or the CSC

PRC-Related Risks:

As an emerging market, investment in the PRC involves special considerations and risks, including but not limited to greater price volatility, less robust regulatory and legal framework, economic and social and political instability.

Equity Risk:

Investing in China Connect securities may offer a more attractive rate of return than other securities. However, the risks associated in investments in China Connect securities may also be higher, because the investment performance of China Connect securities depends upon factors which are difficult to predict. Such factors include the possibility of sudden or prolonged market declines and risks associated with individual companies.

Liquidity Risks:

There can be no assurance that an active trading market for China Connect securities will develop or be maintained. If spreads on China Connect securities are wide, the Customer's ability to dispose of China Connect securities at the desired price may be adversely affected.

25 Risks of SZSE ChiNext Market

Participation in the ChiNext Market is restricted to institutional professional investors only.

ChiNext Shares involve a high investment risk because companies listed on ChiNext are usually start-up enterprises with smaller operating scale and share capital. Their share prices maybe more subject to manipulation, as there are fewer circulating shares on the market. As such, ChiNext Shares may be subject to higher fluctuations in its prices and liquidity.

The rules and regulations governing the listing of companies on the ChiNext market are less stringent than those of the main board and SME board of the SZSE. It may be more common and easier for companies listed on the ChiNext Board to delist. The Customer may suffer heavy losses in the event of a delisting.

26 RISKS FOR SSE STAR MARKET

Participation in the SSE STAR market is restricted to institutional professional investors only.

Regulatory Risks: The rules and guidance on listing, trading, disclosure and other matters of SSE STAR vary much from those of the SSE main board. For example, on the listing requirements, lower net profit and revenue requirements will apply for company seeking IPO and listing on the STAR market. Different trading arrangements will apply for the trading of STAR companies, such as daily price limit, minimum order size and maximum order size. For details of the listing requirements and the trading arrangements of the STAR market and the SSE main board, please visit SSE website.

Delisting risks: The delisting standards of the STAR market are different from those of the SSE main board. There are more situations that will lead to the delisting of STAR companies. STAR companies have greater exposure to the risk of being delisted, and such delisting process may be speeded up.

Operating risks: STAR companies are generally in an early stage of development and have a shorter history. They are usually smaller in scale, have less stable operations, and are less resilient against market risks and industry risks. Although they may have higher growth potential and leverage more on technical innovations, their future performance particularly those without a profit track record is susceptible to great uncertainty.

High Share Price Volatility: The share prices of STAR companies may fluctuate largely and frequently due to changing market conditions, investor speculations, inconsistent financial results, etc. The unstable financial result also adds the difficulty to the company valuations.

Technical Risks: There is higher degree of uncertainty whether a STAR company is able to convert its technical innovations into physical products or services. When the industry is experiencing rapid technological development and replacement, its product may be obsolete and may not survive in the market.

Risk Disclosure Statement

Investors should also refer to the standard \(in Chinese only\) in the Investor Eligibility Implementing Measure of STAR Market which Mainland investors are required to acknowledge before trading in SSE STAR market. The link to the Risk Disclosure Statement:

27 Specific Risks of Unit Trusts and Mutual Funds (“Funds”)

The price of units/shares of a unit trust or mutual fund would fluctuate and may even become valueless. Past performance is not an indication of future performance.

Different investment Funds carry different risks. It is crucial to understand the specific terms and risks mentioned in the relevant offering documents (such as Prospectus, Product Key Fact and Fact Sheet) before investing. Key risks include but are not limited to:

Credit Risk: This risk usually applies to all fixed income (bonds) and money market instruments. Bonds are subject to the risk of the issuer defaulting on its obligations, i.e. An Issuer fails to make principal and interest payments when due. Credit ratings assigned by credit rating agencies do not guarantee the creditworthiness of the Issuer.

Liquidity Risk: This risk exists when a particular instrument of a Fund is difficult to purchase or sell. Securities (including bonds, etc.) not listed or rated may take longer or may even be impossible to dispose of in the market resulting in a higher liquidity risk. With these risks, investors may incur significant costs or losses.

Interest Rate Risk: If the product invested in bonds, it is more susceptible to fluctuations in interest rates and generally prices of bonds will fall when interest rates rise. The price of Funds investing in bonds may fall.

Market Risk: The value of investments may fluctuate due to changing political, legal and, economic conditions and changes in interest rates. This is common to all markets and asset classes. The Customer's return may be substantially less than the initial investment.

In addition to the risks listed above, fund investing in high-yield bonds are subject to risks such as:

Higher Credit Risk: Since high-yield bonds are typically rated below investment grade or are unrated and as such are often subject to a higher risk of issuer default.

Vulnerability to Economic Cycles: During economic downturns high-yield bonds typically fall more in value than investment grade bonds as investors become more risk averse and default risk rises.

Capital Growth Risk: Dividend payout Funds, especially some high-yield bond Funds may have fees and/or dividends paid out of capital. As a result, the capital that the Fund has available for investment in the future and capital growth may be reduced.

Dividend Distributions Risk: Dividend payout Funds, especially some high-yield bond Funds may not distribute dividends, but instead reinvest the dividends into the Fund or alternatively, the investment manager may have discretion on whether or not to make any distribution out of income and/ or capital of the Fund. Also, a high distribution yield does not imply a positive or high return on the total investment.

Other Key Risks: Other key risks that may relate to the Funds investing in bonds, especially in high-yield bonds including concentration of investments in particular types of specialized debt or a specific geographical region or sovereign securities.

Risk of Trading Funds Requiring Derivative Knowledge (FRDK):

FRDK may use financial derivatives instruments for investment purposes, which may involve embedded leverage. The use of financial derivatives instruments may expose the Customer to additional risks including but not limited to volatility risk and counterparty risk. Fund manager(s) may invest up to 100% of total Funds' net assets in structured products, derivatives and non- investment grade debt securities. During adverse market conditions, the Customer may suffer significant financial losses.

28 Specific Risks of Bonds

Bonds remain 100% principal protected upon maturity subject to the credit risk of the Issuer and/or the Guarantor (if applicable).

Bonds are not an alternative to ordinary savings or time deposits.

The price of bonds may fluctuate during its tenor and may even become valueless.

Key Product Risks

It is crucial to understand the specific risks mentioned in the relevant offering documents (if applicable) before investing. Key risks include, but are not limited to, the ones we have listed below:

Credit Risk: The Customer assumes the credit risk of the Issuer and the Guarantor (if applicable). Any changes to the credit rating of them will affect the price and value of the bonds. Bonds are subject to the risk of the Issuer defaulting on its obligations, i.e. an Issuer fails to make principal and interest payments when due. In the worst case scenario of a bankruptcy of the Issuer/Guarantor, the Customer could risk losing the value of the entire investment. Credit ratings assigned by credit rating agencies do not guarantee the creditworthiness of the issuer.

Liquidity Risk: The bond may have limited liquidity and may not be actively traded and/or quoted by brokers in the market. As such:

- (i) The value of bond and/or indicative bid/offer price will depend on market liquidity and conditions which may not be available at all times;
- (ii) It may take a longer time or it may be impossible to sell the bond at prevailing market conditions; and
- (iii) The executable sale price may differ unfavourably by large amounts from the indicative bid price quoted.

Interest Rate Risk: Bonds are more susceptible to fluctuations in interest rates and generally prices of bonds will fall when interest rates rise.

Market Risk: The value of investments may fluctuate due to changing political, legal and, economic conditions and changes in interest rates. This is common to all markets and asset classes. Investor's return may be substantially less than the initial investment.

In addition to the risks listed above, high-yield bonds are subject to additional risks such as:

Higher Credit Risk: Since high-yield bonds are typically rated below investment grade or are unrated, they are often subject to a higher risk of issuer default.

Vulnerability to Economic Cycles: During economic downturns high-yield bonds typically fall more in value than investment grade bonds as (i) investors become more risk averse and (ii) default risk rises.

It is important to note that certain bonds may contain special features and risks that warrant special attention. These include:

Perpetual Bonds: Perpetual debentures do not have a maturity date, and the coupon payments pay-out depends on the viability of the issuer in the very long term, it may be deferred or even suspended subject to the terms and conditions of the issue. Furthermore perpetual debentures are often callable and/or subordinated, and bear re-investment risk and/or subordinated bond risk, detailed below.

Re-investment Risk of Callable Bond: If the bond is callable in which the issuer may redeem the bond before maturity, it is subject to re-investment risk. The yield received when re-investing the proceeds may be less favourable.

Subordinated Bonds: Holders of subordinated debentures will bear higher risks than holders of senior debentures of the issuer due to a lower priority of claim in event of the Issuer's liquidation. Subordinated debentures are unsecured and have lesser priority than that of an additional debt claim of the same asset. They usually have a lower credit rating than senior bonds. The Customer's specific attention is drawn to the credit information of this product, including the respective credit rating of the Issuer, the debenture and/or the Guarantor, as the case may be.

Bonds with Variable Coupon/Coupon Deferral features: If the bonds contain variable and/or deferral of interest payment terms, then the Customer would face uncertainty over the amount and time of the interest payments to be received.

Bonds with Extendable Maturity Date: If the bonds contain extendable maturity date terms, then the Customer would not have a definite schedule of principal repayment.

Convertible or Exchangeable Bonds: Convertible or Exchangeable bonds are convertible or exchangeable in nature and the Customer is subject to both equity and bond investment risk. They may additionally have a contingent write-down or loss absorption feature, meaning the bond may be written-off fully or partially or converted to common stock on the occurrence of a trigger event.

29 Risk of entering into over-the-counter derivative transactions with an unlicensed person

If the Customer enter into over-the-counter derivative transactions with the affiliates (“other affiliates”), it is important for the Customer to note that other affiliates may not be licensed by the Securities and Futures Commission (SFC) and hence may not be subject to the conduct and prudential supervision by the SFC.

Although other affiliates are regulated by another regulatory body, the regulation of such regulatory body may be different from the regulation of the SFC, and the protection that the Customer may receive under the regulation of that regulatory body might not be the same as the protection that the Customer would receive if other affiliates were licensed by the SFC.

The Customer should cautiously consider whether it would be in your best interest to enter into over-the-counter derivative transactions with other affiliates instead of a licensed corporation and seek independent professional advice when in doubt.

30 Risks of entering into Virtual Assets Related Products

You must consider carefully whether the risks set out below, as well as all other applicable risks, are acceptable to the Customer prior to any transaction on virtual assets related products.

Virtual assets or virtual assets related products (“VA”) pose significant risks to investors. Some of these risks are inherent in the nature and characteristics of the virtual assets themselves and others stem from the operations of platforms or portfolio managers.

(i) Liquidity, volatility and valuation

Virtual assets are generally not backed by any physical assets or guaranteed by the government. They have no intrinsic value. Some of the virtual assets may not circulate freely or widely, and may not be listed on any secondary markets. There may be lack of secondary markets for investors to trade virtual assets or VA. There may not have any generally accepted valuation principles governing certain types of virtual assets.

The value of the virtual assets or VA may fluctuate significantly over a short period of time. This means there is a high risk that the price of virtual assets or VA may move up or down, and may become valueless. Investor will lose some or all of your money. Any virtual asset may decrease in value or lose all of its value due to various factors including discovery of wrongful conduct, market manipulation, change to the nature or properties of the virtual asset, governmental or regulatory activity, legislative amendment, suspension or cessation of support for a virtual assets/VA or other exchanges or service providers, public opinions, or other factors outside of our control.

Prices on the secondary market are driven by supply and demand and are short-term and volatile by nature. The volatility faced by investors may be further magnified where liquidity pools for virtual assets are small and fragmented.

(ii) Cybersecurity and safe custody of assets

Trading platform operators and portfolio managers may store clients' assets in hot wallets (ie, online environments which provide an interface with the internet). These can be prone to hacking. Cyber-attacks resulting in the hacking of virtual asset trading platforms and thefts of virtual assets are common. Victims may have difficulty recovering losses from hackers or trading platforms, which can run to hundreds of millions of Hong Kong dollars. Virtual asset funds face a unique challenge due to the limited availability of qualified custodian. Available solutions may not be totally effective.

Transactions involving virtual assets are irrevocable. Lost or stolen virtual assets may be irretrievable. Once a transaction has been verified and recorded on a blockchain, loss or stolen virtual assets generally will not be reversible.

- (iii) Market integrity
Unlike regulated stock exchanges, the market for virtual assets is nascent and may not operate under a set of recognised and transparent rules. Outages are not uncommon, as are market manipulative and abusive activities, and these all result in investor losses.
- (iv) Conflicts of interest
Virtual asset trading platform operators may act as agents for clients as well as principals. Virtual asset trading platforms may facilitate the initial distribution of virtual assets (e.g., initial coin offerings), facilitate secondary market trading, or both, as in a traditional exchange, alternative trading system or securities broker. If these operators are not under the purview of any regulator, it would be difficult to detect, monitor and manage conflicts of interest and has a risk of price manipulation on trading, lending or other dealing platforms.
- (v) Inadequate and inconsistent regulation
Virtual assets/VA may not be subject to regulations associated with a regulated financial product, including, but not limit to, licensing requirement, audit, trade reporting requirements, anti-money laundering rules, market manipulation rules, market integrity principle. The markets for virtual assets/VA are therefore especially susceptible to manipulation and fraud which can have a negative impact on the price of virtual assets/VA.

Among the accounting profession body, there may not be an agreed standards and practices for auditor to perform assurance and valuation procedures to obtain sufficient audit evidence for the existence and ownership of virtual assets, and ascertain the reasonableness of the valuations.

- (vi) Fraud
Virtual assets may be used as a means to defraud investors.

Virtual asset trading platform operators or portfolio managers may not have conducted sufficient product due diligence before allowing virtual assets to be traded on their platforms or investing in a virtual asset for their portfolios. As a result, investors may become victims of fraud and lose their investments.

- (vii) Absence of robust regulations and protection on virtual assets/VA
Not only virtual assets itself, trading, lending, dealing platforms and custodians of virtual assets may be unregulated in some countries. There may not have any guarantees and safeguards provided by Government or regulatory bodies. New unforeseen risks may arise from investing in new types of virtual assets or investing in new market participants' complex transaction strategies products.

Moreover, there may be an absence of a robust regulatory system for virtual assets/VA. Global regulatory bodies may face difficulties on developing a robust regulatory system for virtual assets/VA due to the continuing evolution and development of virtual assets/VA.

- (viii) Virtual assets/VA contains default risks and/or counterparty risks.
Default risk could come from the issuer's failure to make payments as agreed. At time of market downturn, an issuer may default due to their inability to fulfil their commitments.

Counterparty risk refers to the failure of the trading party in fulfilling their financial contractual obligations.

Risks of entering into virtual asset futures contracts

The prices of the virtual assets which underlie these futures contracts fluctuate, sometimes dramatically. This may be due to insufficient liquidity. The difficulty in valuing the underlying virtual assets will in turn pose significant challenges for investors in reliably valuing virtual asset futures contracts.

Investors are exposed to amplified risks due to the highly leveraged nature of futures contracts. Moreover, the complexities and inherent risks of virtual assets and/or virtual asset futures contracts are likely to be difficult for the average investor to understand. From time to time, there have been reports of market manipulative and abusive activities on platforms offering or trading virtual asset futures contracts. Such platforms may not have clear and fair trading rules. Some platforms have been criticised by investors for changing their trading rules during the life of futures contracts, for instance, halting trades or rolling back transactions and causing significant losses to investors.

As VA is a relatively new class of asset, there may be additional risk which have not been identified and mentioned. Due to volatility and unknown risk nature, the Customer should only invest in VA if the Customer are prepared to accept the risk of losing all the monies, they have invested in VA.

The Customer understands and acknowledges the risks to the Customer associated with giving the Customer Securities Standing Authority. - (i) apply any of the Customer's Securities or securities collateral pursuant to a securities borrowing and lending agreement between the Company and a third party, subject to compliance with the Client Securities Rules and/or other applicable regulatory rules;
- (ii) subject to the Client Securities Rules regarding repledging limits, deposit any of the Customer's securities collateral with an authorised financial institution as Collateral for financial accommodation provided to the Company;
- (iii) deposit any of the Customer's securities collateral with HKSCC as collateral for the discharge and satisfaction of the Company's settlement obligations and liabilities. The Customer understands that HKSCC will have a fixed charge over the Customer's securities to the extent of the Company's obligation and liabilities;
- (iv) deposit any of the Customer's securities collateral with any other recognised clearing house, or another intermediary licensed or registered for dealing in securities, as collateral for the discharge and satisfaction of the Company's settlement obligations and liabilities; and
